Special Guest Speaker:

Joseph Lunardi

(AKA Joey Brackets)

Joe is a college basketball analyst for ESPN. He was born in Philadelphia and is Saint Joseph's University Assistant Vice President for Marketing Communications.

Joe is the nationally-known Bracketologist for ESPN, ESPN Radio and ESPN.com. Lunardi created Bracketology, which he calls the "art and science" of predicting the teams that will be selected in the annual NCAA Men's Basketball Tournament.

Lunardi correctly predicted all 65 teams to appear in the 2008 NCAA Tournament, while correctly selecting 63 of the 65 teams in 2009.

In addition to his work at ESPN, he has provided color commentary for over 750 Saint Joseph's University Hawk's mens basketball games in his career.
